waiting for March 4 and the inauguration of Franklin Roosevelt. Unemployment was severe. Confidence had been shattered by knowledge that a worldwide depression was running its grim course and by knowledge that in the United States there was no common agreement on what should be done.

President Hoover and his advisers believed that there could be no substantial improvement until confidence had been restored; that in no other way could investors and employers be persuaded to make the decisions that would create jobs, wealth and buying power. They were trying to restore con-

They were under fire, scattered at first but later to be concentrated on the profit system, by a noisy faction of radicals backed up by Communists. Although in the campaign of 1932 Franklin Roosevelt had criticized the Hoover administration for spending public money recklessly, Mr. Roosevelt was about to be captured outright by a junta of spenders who would double federal outgo their first full year in power. They would quadruple it before the beginning of World War II.

But it is deeply significant that federal spending, which produces no wealth, never routed the depression. It was routed finally by the outbreak of World War II, when federal spending climbed to such huge proportions that virtually every citizen was af-

PUBLIC SPENDING during the '30s had substantial effect because it was not massive enough to have the effect of a war boom in itself and was no substitute for the wealthcreating operation of private capital.

The Roosevelt administration never found the key to investor confidence. After World War II, the key was in the possession of the Truman administration, though not because of the administration's own policies. There was such a pent-up demand for goods that it was going to take years to satisfy it. There was confidence in good markets for an indefinite time to come

The postwar prosperity surge was augmented by the Korean War, which added a small war boom to a sellers' market at the end of the Truman years.

UNDER DWIGHT EISENHOWER'S administration, there was a singular revival of confidence-strong enough to carry the economy through at least four minor recessionsstrong enough to justify a spreading belief that the United States had learned to control the violent ups and downs that threatened to destroy it in the 19th century. Americans had learned not to panic. They had found out there is no substitute for the creation of wealth by private enterprise. They had discovered what government could and could not do, and they knew it could not spend the country into prosperity.

On the other hand, it could encourage private enterprise to create wealth and employment. There was no limit to its good effect, if it remained mindful of the bad effect it

As had been expected ever since the full effect of the tragic steel strike of 1959 finally became clear in 1960, the first half of 1961 has turned into a rough passage. Inventory displacements caused by the strike have borne their bitter fruit. The impact of the Steelworkers' refusal to gear operating practices to foreign competition has been felt on other industries. Unionism has taken an irreconcilable position.

THE NEWS is going to be confidence-shattering for awhile. Even though employment is high, unemployment keeps growing as more young people enter the labor supply and massive dislocations wipe out jobs for large groups of workers, especially the un-

President Kennedy must do what Herbert Hoover was trying to do when Franklin Roosevelt was getting ready to take office. He must do what Mr. Roosevelt tried to do after he entered the White House. He must try to instill confidence in his countrymennot confidence that their government will save them but confidence in their ability to save themselves.

This is the test of the proposition that the United States has mastered the trick of pulling out of business slowdowns.

If President Kennedy remembers what was learned in the '30s and again in the '40s, he will keep his wild-eyed backers at bay and of the republic with their confidence. encourage all moderates to come to the aid

The Once Over

J. Edgar Hoover says sudden emergence of women as bank robbers is shocking phase of increasing crime wave. Mother with can of nitro and sawed-off shotgun is hard on the eyes, not to mention grandma late with dinner because she was busy sticking up the trust company,

Fancy the missus phoning of her plight from the hoosegow and saying, "With groceries so high, and the peanut money you allow me, what did you expect?"

Bank hoists were until lately, catalogued as a strictly masculine endeavor. There was rarely a case of a vault cleaned out by the "James Sisters." But women and teen-age gals are in a Ladies Auxiliary of the Willie Sutton Bank Robbery Fraternity.

The police query "Male or Female?" to the report, "The bank's been robbed," is more or less routine.

Women are in everything, as the saying goes. Milady is not longer necessarily a shy, winsome extra-dainty creature who leaves rough work to the "lords and masters."

They are in the forefront in almost every activity, so it is not extra-sensational to discover them in unexpected activities hitherto marked "men only."

Mr. Hoover reports that many a prepossessing chick "cases the joint" these days and that a blonde or brunette may be behind the command, "This is a stickup. Hand over the dough and you won't get hurt."

A good many are very young, some in their teens, which is quite a commentary on modern life, the luxury craze and the desire for fast money, preferably in sacks.

It makes things tougher on bank officials and guards. Once they had only to watch suspicious acting males, now with the Whistler's Mother type in action, it could be sisted it would be-ideal.

When the legendary discoverer of roast pig made his culinary break-through, it took a fire and a fatality. It's possible New York City may have discovered how to save itself by accident-just make all the amateur drivers leave their jalopies at the outer gate.

A Good Example

Clarence D. Wright has received further recognition in the International Barbers Union by being named chairman of the Board of Trustees of the group's health and welfare trust fund.

be a case of "out of the rocking-chair into the bank vaults."

Mr. Hoover doesn't offer any suggestion for curbing this amazing break with the best bank robbing traditions. But if the missus is squawking about her need for extra money, a husband might well recognize a symptom and come across in the interest of law and Sister Susie might bear watching, too. There are so many things a teen-ager wants and the banks have one of them.

Odd Facts

The undertow at an ocean beach is caused by the recession of the waves which have rushed up on the beach. The water that has washed up must recede. Meanwhile, another wave is approaching. This second wave climbs over the receding water, and as this is repeated time and again, there is a seaward flowing current set up under the adfancing waves which we call an undertow.

The greatest of ancient geographers was Ptolemy of Alexandria, who lived in the 2nd century A.D., and who for many centuries was the great authority. His map of the world was universally used, and it was the one on which Columbus relied during his voyages to the New World.

Pitchblende, a source of radium, is a rare black or brown oxide of uranium found with ores of lead, silver, and tin. The major sources of pitchblende are in Canada, Czechoslovakia, and the Belgian Congo.

The state of New Mexico suffered more casualties per capita during World War II than any other state in the United States.

Crime Syndicate 'Break' Studied

By Victor Riesel

Attorney General Robert Kennedy may try to break the bank at all the undercover Monte Carlos across the U.S. - literally break them. It is being reported by insiders that

"B o 5" believes he can smash syndicated crime more easily if first he cracks t h e nation's multi - billion dollar gambling bines.

This theory Victor Riesel has it that the command echelon of the gamblers is interlocked with the narcotics gangs and the syndicates which have set up baronies to control industrial and labor rackets.

What the informed are saying is that Kennedy will work silently for a year, perhaps two.

He'll methodically put together a case of conspiracy against the gambling elite.

court room scene. Literally, he'll try them by going into court him-

No attorney general ever has worked a case himself in a lower court. There have been personal appearances by attorneys general before the Supreme Court. But not the first prosecutive action.

Such a move would capture America's imagination. Its impact on law enforcement would be uplifting - literally. It would be the nation's top lawyer battling the country's top hoods and their most eloquent and expensive mouthpieces

Such a government move would be based on the proposition that all gamblers are created with an equal disdain for the tax law . and that they haven't been paying the 10 per cent "wagering" levy.

This excise impost, though little known to the public, is due the Treasury Department each year. It is supposed to be paid on all winnings. Obviously gamblers haven't been paying. Nor have all of them been keeping records. They, then, are subject to a conspiracy charge. This, therefore, constitutes an effort to do the In ternal Revenue Service out of money. There is conspirary, if two or more persons plan to violate a federal law.

How can an investigation of gamblers cut into the crowd which has cut into the labor-management field?

A federal fellow traced just one instance for this column the other

A FEW WEEKS AGO, it was learned that a horse breeding farm at Algonac, Mich., was operated by one Mike Rubino. He has a police "sheet" fuller than the Bounty's sail. He has also been convicted on a narcotics charge.

A check of the Apalachin crime convention records revealed that Rubino, habitat Detroit, has been close to Angelo Meli, a power in Midwest labor circles and Pete Licavoli, an Arizona horsebreeder himself and juke box operator. There were others.

Furthermore, McClellan committee testimony - brought out under the questioning of one Bob Kennedy - revealed that Rubino was close to a Jack Bushkin, long in the labor relations business. He in turn is close to a friend of many a teamsters official.

In fact so close, according to this testimony, that Bushkin made good those bad checks passed by Dranow at the Flamingo Hotel and the Desert Inn in Las Vegas. The burn paper totaled $3,100.

How do we know Bushkin made same day that the latter is asked: good? A McClellan committee ace investigator testified he had the evidence. The prober's name is Pierre Salinger. When Bushkin checks, he refused to answer on grounds of the Fifth Amendment.

DRANOW has been involved in the placing of millions of dollars investments. of teamster's money and pension funds. He is now under federal indictment. Yet here he turns up in testimony involving Bushkin on the unravel.

"Another individual that you were close to is Mr. Mike Rubino, is that right?" Again Bushkin took the Fifth.

Thus a single strand of this was asked about the Dranow skein twists and turns from a horse-breeding farm and race track gamblers through a network involving juke boxes right to a man who has fronted for teamsters

There are hundreds of such strands - literally. This is what the attorney general is trying to

The Life Of Politics

By Raymond Moley

There was, it is said, a doctor ministration in power cannot in Washington who had an enormous and profitable practice. A young man just ending his internship asked him the secret of his success. The answer was, "I scare them into fits and then I specialize in curing fits."

If things were fairly normal and HE'LL TRY THEM in one mass an administration doing a good h in keening them so no electorate would be disposed to make change. And so an opposition must convince voters that things are not normal and that the government is indifferent to taking remedial action.

This is where the art of persuasion comes in Apparently, a relatively few thousands believed more in the dark side and the Kennedy-Johnson ticket is in office.

So, in order to prepare the way for radical action by government in administering restoratives, the dark picture was presented by the newly inaugurated President. If what President Kennedy said is true, we are indeed in a state of emergency.

An equally truthful and certainly a better informed man, the former President, has said that we are not in such a bad state.

HERE IS AN ISSUE. And who is to resolve it?

Since the United States is well equipped with economic experts and seers, it might be suggested that a hundred or so of the elite be brought together to do an exhaustive checkup on our economy.

If such a convocation should be held, the individuals therein would terminate their deliberations in a fist fight. The scene would be cluttered with cracked noggins, mixed metaphors and split infinitives.

There would be violent differences among the combatants as to the facts; but if there could be agreement on the facts, there would be equally bitter differences as to what should be done.

Even those economists who are

In the early Roosevelt administration all three schools of doctors were present and violently denouncing one another.

The President believed that his capacity for assimilation was unlimited, and so he let them all go to work. After the first two or three years, things failed to improve. Then the great war came and stark necessity took over.

In the Kennedy portraya' of deplorable conditions now, he is at disadvantage when compared with the Roosevelt takeover in 1933. For everybody knew and felt the depression then. Now the portrayal must be achieved by semantics and exhortations.

WE SHOULD remember that contrasts between viewing with alarm and pointing with pride are the life of politics. For as a wise man has said, "politics is a perpetual emergency.

No government at any time has failed to follow the rule of selfpreservation. That rule is to convince the public that there is a dreadful enemy at the door and that all must unite to repel it.

Americans are accustomed to alarms and are not unaware of the wiles of politicans. They will go on doing their work, keeping a little of what they earn, and, above all, maintaining a sense of humor.

They have seen this play before. They will see it again. And they will survive, somehow. They will survive even the ministration of heterogeneous remedies.

They will note that if a politician can say that there is nowhere to go but up, he can claim all the gains thereafter to be the result of generally on the side of the ad- his perceptions and his remedies.

Red Trade Talk Revived

By Jay G. Hayden

A move by President Kennedy to tries have been slow to buy bemodify the Battle Act to permit U. S. loans to Communist Poland almost certainly is designed as a wedge for liberalizing trade with Russia and perhaps even with Red

For one thing there obviously is a good possibility of redressing the currency exchange situation, now running heavily against the dollar, by lessening the official boycotts by which the United States now bars nearly all trade with the one-third of the world's people under Communist rule.

The Battle Act, named after Laurie Calvin Battle, former Alabama congressman, and passed in 1951, not only barred trade in many commodities - military and nonmilitary - with Russia or Sovietdominated areas but cut off from U.S. aid any nation exporting such commodities to Communist

As late as 1948 the U.S. imported $87 million worth of goods from Russia and sold Russia $28 million worth. Last year the United States bought $17.6 million worth of Russian commodities, chiefly furs, benzene and platinum and sold to Russia $5 million worth, nearly all steel, chemicals and machinery.

In contract, under the U. S.-Polish Trade Agreement in its first full year, 1958, $68 million worth of Polish goods came to this country compared with $193 million flowing the other way. True, the great bulk of Polish buying was in food products paid for in their own cur-

My war with the cats at the Twillery has taken a new turn. The enemy, which always outnumbered and outmaneuvered me, now outsmarts me.

They concentrate 24 hours a day on getting inside the house and then deploying themselves so they cannot be evicted. Until recently their purpose could be blunted and turned aside at will by slamming the refrigerator door, triggering their conditioned reflex about sound and food.

It must have been the extremely cold weather that revealed to them they were paying too high a price for a perfunctory lunch. They began to balance in their minds whether they wanted the lunch or the comfort and security of a warm house, and they favored the latter.

They figured out that they would get their main meal each day regardless of how many impromptu lunches they missed. Bevond that, they figured out how not to miss even the lunches, because if they split into two groups, one group always could let tself be lured outside by the lunch bait while the other group stayed comfortable in various parts of the house. Then by alternating between groups, they made certain that some cats always would be inside and equally certain that no cats always would be outside

Chances Of Flood Seen 'Pretty Thin,' Forecaster Says

PITTSBURGH (A) - Chances of flooding in western Pennsylvania 'are pretty thin right now," says River Forecaster Vernon Houghton of the U.S. Weather Bureau at Pittsburgh.

Only "four consecutive days of temperatures in the 60s plus an extensive rainfall" could create a possible flood threat at this time, the river expert said Saturday.

He added that such weather con ditions aren't "very likely." Houghton said the chances of floods now are much less than they were in January 1959 or last March in spite of this winter's extra-heavy snow fall. "The water content of the snow is fairly low" and the rivers in western Pennsylvania are still low enough to handle any sudden breaking-up of ice jams, he ex-

The Borough of Ohioville Republican Club decided at an executive board meeting Saturday evening to hold an open primary election May 16 in Ohio Township.

The township will nominate officers in May and elect in Novem ber in order for the new borough to begin operation next January

The group met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. Paul Dawson o Fairview. It will lend assistance to anyone who wishes to run for office, but will not back a slate o candidates. It will allow the Re publican voters to show their pref erences, the club reported.

George Vlaich, area co-ordinator announced there will be 17 offices to fill, including seven councilmen, three auditors, an assessor, a tax collector, a school board member burgess, a judge of election and majority and minority inspectors

Earl Scheel, chairman, announce ed that petitions will be available at the next club meeting Friday, Feb. 24, at 8 p. m. in the Township

The first day petitions may be circulated for signatures will be Feb. 21 and they must be filed at the Beaver County Courthouse at Beaver by March 13.

THE PRESIDENT OF TAPPAN CO... SAYS:

TO: Merchandise Manager, (Store Name)

In order to step up production and keep our workers steadily employed, we are hereby giving you special permision to make reductions on a limited number of Tappan ranges. This means you are authorized to "Tag 'em and Sell 'em" at unprecedented savings. I suggest you tell the public the reason for this special sale. This offer strictly limited to your present inventory and to shipments now en route.

W. K. Tarran PRESIDENT

...and that's exactly what we're doing!

Take it from us, when the Tappan Factory authorizes a sale, it's a DANDY! To keep their men working during the "off" season, they gave us their OK to slash prices to the lowest levels ever offered on quality . . . and not "off-beat" models. If you've been considering a new range, we strongly recommend you take advantage of this outstanding sale. Strictly limited quantities, firstcome, first-served.

How Can I? By ANNE ASHLEY

Q. What can I do if the water use consomme instead of water continues to drip after the toilet has been flushed?

A. Probably the rubber tank ball has worn out and needs replacing. Turn off the water in the supply pipe, lift the top of the flush tank, and then holding the rod connect ed to the rubber ball in one hand, unscrew the ball with the other. Screw the new rubber ball into place, turn on the water, and your problem should be solved.

Q. How can I easily whip cream when it seems to be too thick?

A. Place the dish of cream in another dish containing cold water. When chilled, place in a dish of hot water for a few minutes. It will then whip very readily.

In 2 Collisions

Police today are investigating two hit-skip collisions - part of the series of five traffic mishaps

Charles P. Webber, 649 Almont St., told police his 1955 sedan was damaged about 11:30 p. m. Saturday when struck by a hit-and-run motorist while parked on Lisbon

Webber said his auto was struck by the car of another motorist who could not make it up the grade because of icy pavements. In backing downgrade, the motorist struck the right side and rear of Webber's car, he told police.

Webber furnished police with the license number of the offending car. Officers advised him to file

In another collision Saturday at 10:25 p. m. on Avondale St. at Bank St., a 27-year-old motorist was accused of hit-skip driving, but denied the charge A parked car owned by Virgil and Virginia Kirkbride of Foulks Dr., Calcutta, was struck by a hitskip car, damaging the rear bumper, police were told. Kirkbride told police a neighbor called him outside and told him his auto had just been struck by another car which did not stop. The neighbor said he saw the car proceed north on Avondale St., but did not obtain the license number.

Kirkbride said he pursued the other car, which turned onto St. Clair Ave. and then into an alley. He said he obtained the license number, which was issued in the name of an Oak St. man. Police listed the other driver's name of the accident report, but no charges were filed against him.

The Oak St. man said he did not hit Kirkbride's car and refused to make a statement about the accident, police said.

Care Needed When Picking Wall Material

By ANDY LANG AP Newsfeatures

What's the best wall material for an extra room in the house? Don't let anybody give you a flat answer to that question unless he has first asked you a lot of ques-

There are many factors to be considered, not the least of which s the use to which the room will be put and the amount of money that is to be spent.

Also, entirely aside from the practical considerations, there is the very unpredictable element of personal preference.

You have to like the appearance of the new room or your reasons for selecting a particular kind of wall material will seem less and less important as time goes on. How then do you decide? By looking over all the available materials, by asking questions, by reading booklets and by inspecting finished installations, either in model rooms displayed by dealers or in the home of friends. As a starter, let's see what ome of your choices are. There s inexpensive gypsum board.
